WALT DISNEY'S DONALD DUCK ADVENTURES CHRISTMAS on BEAR MOUNTAIN

50th Anniversary Celebration of Disney's Uncle Scrooge by Carl Barks

The Duck Man

On a request in the late 1960s, Carl Barks painted 50 paintings of the Disney Ducks in various incarnations (in oils or watercolors) from his 500 comic book stories. His work was commissioned at a mere $250. His painting rapidly grew, and auctions now bring prices in the $200,000 range as fine art collectibles the world over. In his new studio, Carl Barks may well have a body of work. The still actively creative painter brings much joy to millions of fans worldwide. This philatelic comic book, the first in a series, is a memento.

GUYANA "Carl Barks, The Duck Man"

Christmas on Bear Mountain

Carl Barks painted his watercolor of Christmas on Bear Mountain in 1995 to commemorate the impending Golden Anniversary of his most famous cartoon creation, Uncle Scrooge McDuck. As in all his Duck paintings, Barks' genius is in strong evidence here: In a single scene he depicts the thrust of the complete story, engaging the viewer and inviting the reading of the entire story. Uncle Scrooge's character evolved over the years into a more complex personality, but his debut in Christmas on Bear Mountain is still vintage Barks, with all the humor, suspense, and drama of the later Scrooge tales.
